ABOUT ME

I enjoy building things for the web that are both functional and aesthetically pleasing. I started my journey with HTML and CSS, the foundation of modern web standards, and later strengthened these skills with Bootstrap for developing fast and responsive interfaces.

My main focus and strongest asset is bringing user interaction to life. That's why I dove deep into the JavaScript ecosystem. I went from grasping the core concepts to building real-world applications and components using modern JavaScript (ES6+). Because I believe in continuous learning, I keep my skills sharp by regularly practicing with algorithms and data structures.

I'm now combining these technical skills with the world's most popular web platform, WordPress. I can use visual tools like Elementor to create quick solutions, but I can also work with WordPress's PHP-based structure for more customization and control when a project requires it. My ultimate goal is to turn a well-designed idea into a smoothly functioning and user-friendly web experience.
